Applications are invited for the position of Editor-in-Chief of the

International Journal of Geriatric Psychiatry

The International Journal of Geriatric Psychiatry aims to communicate the results of original research in the causes, treatment and care of all forms of mental disorder which affect the elderly. The Journal is of interest to psychiatrists, psychologists, social scientists, nurses and others engaged in therapeutic professions, together with general neurobiological researchers. It provides an international perspective on the important issue of geriatric psychiatry, and contributions are published from countries throughout the world. Topics covered include epidemiology of mental disorders in old age, clinical aetiological research, post-mortem pathological and neurochemical studies, treatment trials and evaluation of geriatric psychiatry services.

The successful candidate will have extensive experience in research and publishing in academic journals.

The main functions within this role are:

The post involves working closely with the editorial board, editorial team and the publisher.

The ideal person should possess the following:
- 10 years research experience with good track record of academic publications
- Excellent written and verbal communication
- Sound scientific judgement
- Leadership qualities
- Excellent knowledge of research frontiers in geriatric psychiatry (internationally)
- Ability to work to tight deadlines.
- Commercial awareness (marketing and advertising)

The ideal candidate will be recognised internationally for his or her academic publications, and have an impressive track record of academic output. Applicants should note that this position requires a number of hours work each week with the possibility of additional days required for meetings and conferences. In light of this an honorarium is granted.

The current editor is intending to step down by the end of August 2017, so following a handover period, the new editor would be in place by 1st September 2017.

Applications should include a curriculum vitae, a short assessment of the strengths and weaknesses of the Journal nationally and internationally, and an outline of your vision for this Journal and how you would like to see it develop in the future.
