

AREA EDITORS

ANCIENT NEAR EAST

Eva von Dassow teaches the history and languages of the ancient Near East at the University of Minnesota. She is the author of State and Society in the Late Bronze Age: Alalah under the Mittani Empire (2008); coauthor of Cuneiform Texts in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, vol. 3 (2000); and editor of The Egyptian Book of the Dead: The Book of Going Forth by Day (1994, 1998). Her recent research focuses on the conceptualization of citizenship and the constitution of publics in ancient Near Eastern polities, written records as artifacts of cultural practice and temporal process, and the nature of writing as an interface between reader and reality. Among her current projects is a study of the Hurro-Hittite bilingual edition of the “Song of Liberation.”

Daniel Snell is the editor of Blackwell’s A Companion to the Ancient Near East (2005); his latest book is Religions of the Ancient Near East (2011). He teaches social, economic, and religious history at the University of Oklahoma in Norman.

BRONZE AND IRON AGE

Irene S. Lemos is a professor of classical archaeology and a fellow of Merton College, Oxford. Her main interests are the archaeology and history of early Greece from the fall of the Mycenaean palaces to the end of the archaic period. She has published The Protogeometric Aegean (2002) and edited (with S. Deger-Jalkotzy) Ancient Greece from the Mycenaean Palaces to the Age of Homer (2006). She has also published finds from Lefkandi in Euboea, where she also is the director of the excavations.

BYZANTIUM

Elizabeth M. Jeffreys is Bywater and Sotheby Professor of Byzantine and Modern Greek Language and Literature Emerita in the University of Oxford, and also fellow emerita of Exeter College, Oxford. She works on topics in Byzantine literature, including chronicles from the sixth century, and romances and court poetry from the Komnenian and Palaeologan periods. Her recent books include Digenis Akritis (1998), The Age of the Dromon (2006), The Oxford Handbook of Byzantine Studies (2008), and Iacobi Monachi Epistulae (2009).

CHRISTIANITY

Bart D. Ehrman is the James A. Gray Distinguished Professor of Religious Studies at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. An expert on the New Testament and the history of early Christianity, he has written or edited twenty-five books, including the two-volume edition of the Apostolic Fathers for the Loeb Classical Library (2003), and four New York Times bestsellers, including Misquoting Jesus (2005).

CLASSICAL GREECE

Michele Faraguna is associate professor of Greek history at the University of Trieste, Italy. He has worked on Greek political, administrative, economic, and legal history from the Archaic Age to early Hellenism. He is the author of Atene nell'età di Alessandro. Problemi politici, economici, finanziari (1992) and many articles. He recently edited Dynasthai didaskein. Studi in onore di Filippo Càssola (2006) and Nomos despotes: Law and Legal Procedures in Ancient Greek Society (2007). He is currently working on a book on public archives in Greece.

ECONOMY

David B. Hollander is associate professor of history at Iowa State University. His main interests are the late Roman Republic, the ancient economy, and agricultural history. He is the author of Money in the Late Roman Republic (2007) as well as articles on monetization and the Roman mint. He also serves on the steering committee of the Society of Biblical Literature program unit entitled Early Christianity and the Ancient Economy.

GRECO-ROMAN EGYPT

Paul Schubert is professor of Greek language and literature at the University of Geneva. He is mainly a papyrologist, working on both documents and literary texts, but he has also published articles on Greek literature from Homer to the novel. His latest books are Philadelphie: Un village égyptien entre le IIe et le IIIe s. ap. J.-C. (2007) and Les papyrus de Genève, vol. 4 (2010).

HELLENISTIC WORLD

Angelos Chaniotis is professor of ancient history and classics at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton. He has worked on Greek historiography, the history of Crete, Hellenistic history and culture, and the history of Greek religion. He is senior editor of the Supplementum Epigraphicum Graecum.

HISTORIOGRAPHY

Craige B. Champion received his graduate training in classics and ancient history at Princeton University. He is associate professor of ancient history and classics in the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs and former chair of the History Department at Syracuse University. He has published widely on ancient Greek and Roman history and historiography. He is the author of Cultural Politics in Polybius's Histories (2004) and editor of Roman Imperialism: Readings and Sources (2004).

JEWISH HISTORY

Gideon Bohak is an associate professor at the Department of Jewish Culture and the Program in Religious Studies at Tel Aviv University. He has worked on Jewish history and literature in the Second Temple and the Rabbinic periods, on Jewish magic, and on ethnic stereotypes in Greek and Latin literature. His books are Joseph and Aseneth and the Jewish Temple in Heliopolis (1996), Ancient Jewish Magic: A History (2008), and a coedited volume, Continuity and Innovation in the Magical Tradition (2011).

LATE ANTIQUITY

Arietta Papaconstantinou is lecturer at the Université Paris 1. Her interests cover the history of the Near East during the later Roman Empire and the transition to the Islamic Empire. Among her books are Le culte des saints en Égypte des Byzantins aux Abbassides (2001) and The Multilingual Experience in Egypt from the Ptolemies to the 'Abbāsids (2010). She has written widely on aspects of Late Antique and early Islamic social history and material culture, and is now engaged in a project on multilingualism in Egypt and the Levant.

LAW

Elizabeth A. Meyer is professor of history at the University of Virginia. Her interests include the social and cultural history of ancient Greece and Rome, epigraphy, Roman law, and ancient legal culture. She is the author of Legitimacy and Law: Tabulae in Roman Belief and Practice (2004), Metics and the Athenian Phialai-Inscriptions (2010), and many articles on Greek and Roman history.

PHARAONIC EGYPT

Salima Ikram is professor of Egyptology at the American University in Cairo, and has worked in Egypt since 1986. After double majoring in history as well as classical and Near Eastern archaeology at Bryn Mawr College, she received her MPhil (in museology and Egyptian archaeology) and PhD (in Egyptian archaeology) from Cambridge University. She has worked on several excavations throughout Egypt and is the co-director of the North Kharga Oasis Survey; she also works regularly in Turkey at Kinet Höyük. She has also co-directed projects in the Egyptian Museum, Cairo (such as the Animal Mummy Project and the Predynastic Gallery Project). Her research interests include death, daily life, art, archaeo-zoology, ethno-archaeology, rock art, experimental archaeology, and the preservation and presentation of cultural heritage.

PLACES – EAST

Gary Reger is Hobart Professor of Classical Languages at Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut, where he is also a member of the History Department. His work has focused on the economy of the Hellenistic world and Greek epigraphy. He is the author of Regionalism and Change in the Economy of Independent Delos (1994) and of many articles on Hellenistic economic history and epigraphy, and coeditor of Regionalism in Hellenistic and Roman Asia Minor (2007) and Studies in Greek Epigraphy and History in Honor of Stephen V. Tracy (2010). His current projects include a study of Mylasa in Karia and an examination of the applicability of regional and network models to the Hellenistic economy.

PLACES – WEST

Lea Stirling is professor of classics at the University of Manitoba and holds the Canada Research Chair in Roman archaeology. She co-directs excavation at the Roman city of Leptiminus (Lamta, Tunisia). She also researches issues concerning Roman and Late Antique sculpture. Her most recent books are The Learned Collector: Mythological Statuettes and Classical Taste in Late Antique Gaul (2005) and the coedited volume Mortuary Landscapes of North Africa (2007).

RELIGION

James B. Rives is Kenan Eminent Professor of Classics at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is the author of Religion and Authority in Roman Carthage (1995) and Religion in the Roman Empire (2006), as well as numerous articles on aspects of religion in the Roman world; he has also published a translation, with introduction and commentary, of Tacitus' Germania (1999).

ROMAN EMPIRE

Stephen Mitchell is emeritus professor at the University of Exeter, United Kingdom. His main area of scholarly interest is the Eastern Mediterranean and the Near East from the Hellenistic period up to Late Antiquity, with a particular emphasis on the history of Asia Minor and the study of inscriptions from the region. He is currently president of the Association Internationale d'Épigraphie Grecque et Latine. His most recent books are History of the Later Roman Empire AD 285–641 (2007) and Corpus of the Greek and Latin Inscriptions of Ankara (2011).

ROMAN INTELLECTUAL AND CULTURAL HISTORY

Stephen Harrison is fellow and tutor in classics at Corpus Christi College, Oxford, and professor of classical languages and literature in the University of Oxford. He is the author of books on Vergil, Horace, and Apuleius and editor of several volumes including Blackwell's A Companion to Latin Literature (2005) and The Cambridge Companion to Horace (2007).

ROMAN MILITARY HISTORY

Brian Campbell is professor of Roman history at the Queen's University Belfast. His interests lie in the history of the Roman Empire, especially the role of the army in politics, land survey, land distribution, the writings of the Agrimensores, and rivers in the life and thought of the Roman world. His most recent books are The Writings of the Roman Land Surveyors (2000), War and Society in Imperial Rome 31 BC–AD 284 (2002), and Greek and Roman Military Writers (2004).

ROMAN REPUBLIC

Christopher Smith is professor of ancient history at the University of St Andrews, and director of the British School at Rome. He has worked on early Rome, Roman historiography, and the Roman Republic. His most recent book was The Roman Clan: The Gens from Ancient Ideology to Modern Anthropology (2005).

SCIENCE

Daryn Lehoux is professor of classics, Queen's University. He is the author of What Did the Romans Know? (2011) and Astronomy, Weather and Calendars in the Ancient World (2007) and has published widely on ancient science. He has focused especially on the epistemology of observation, classification, and concepts of law in nature.

SOCIAL HISTORY

Sabine R. Huebner is Privatdozentin of ancient history at Freie Universität Berlin and a Heisenberg fellow at the Collège de France in Paris. Before that, she was a visiting research scholar at several institutions in the United States: Columbia University; the University of California, Berkeley; the Institute for the Study of the Ancient World in New York; and the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton. She has published widely on the social and religious history of the Greco-Roman eastern Mediterranean. Her work includes two monographs, Der Klerus in der Gesellschaft des spätantiken Kleinasien (2005) and The Family in Roman Egypt (2011); a coedited volume, Growing Up Fatherless in Antiquity (2009); and contributions to the Oxford Handbook of Childhood and Education in the Classical World (2012) and Blackwell's A Companion to Families in the Greek and Roman Worlds (2010).