Aims and Scope: The Pacific Economic Review (PER) publishes high-quality articles in all areas of economics, both theoretical and empirical research, and welcomes in particular analyses of economic issues in the Asia-Pacific area. The journal, inaugurated in 1994 and publishing five times a year since 2007, is of interest to academics, policy-makers and corporate economists. The Pacific Economic Review is the official publication of the Hong Kong Economic Association and has a strong editorial team and international board of editors. The October issue, edited and published with sponsorship from National Taiwan University, welcomes empirical, theoretical and policy-oriented contributions from all fields of economics, with a special focus on applied econometrics. The December issue, edited by the Center for Advanced Policy Studies and the Joint Usage and Research Center, International Joint Research Center of Advanced Economic Theory at the Institute of Economic Research at Kyoto University, welcomes all areas of economics with a special focus on economic issues and policies relating to the Asia-Pacific region. All issues of the PER maintain the same high standards of quality. The Pacific Economic Review is a double-blind refereed journal.

Submission of manuscripts: Authors must choose which of the editorial offices they would like their article to be considered by – Pacific Economic Review has editorial offices in the US, Hong Kong, Taiwan and Japan. Authors who have no particular preferences of editorial offices can follow the following guidelines: Authors from Taiwan and Japan can send their papers to the National Taiwan University and to the Kyoto University editorial office respectively. Authors from North America can submit their papers to the US editorial office, while authors from the rest of the world other than Taiwan and Japan can submit their papers to the Hong Kong editorial office. Manuscripts should not exceed 50 pages.
