Global Policy is an innovative and interdisciplinary journal bringing together world class academics and leading practitioners to analyse both public and private solutions to global problems and issues. It focuses on understanding globally relevant risks and collective action problems; policy challenges that have global impact and competing and converging discourses about global risks and policy responses. It also includes case studies of policy with clear lessons for other countries and regions; how policy responses, politics and institutions interrelate at the global level; and the conceptual, theoretical and methodological innovations needed to explain and develop policy in these areas.

Guidelines for Authors

Aims and Scope: Global Policy has a multidisciplinary, interdisciplinary and international outlook. We are committed to developing the accuracy, policy relevance and progressive outlook of academic research. The focus for most of the accepted work in Global Policy will lie in economics, global politics, government, international law, international relations and international political economy, but equally the Journal will be relevant to and interested in a much wider range of disciplines. The editors are committed to developing both the highest standards of scholarship and evidence-based reasoning by authors. All scholarly articles are subject to rigorous peer review. We are at the same time committed to the effective communication of research in the most accessible and professional fashion. We seek to engage meaningfully with the widest range of readers and contributors both in the global public policy research fields and in major governments, international organizations, central banks, industries and NGOs dealing with global policy issues.

Submission: Papers should be submitted online. For detailed instructions please go to: http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/globalpolicy

If this is the first time you have used the system you will be asked to register by clicking on 'create an account'. Full instructions on making your submission are provided. You should receive an acknowledgement within a few minutes. Thereafter, you will be kept in touch with the progress of your submission through refereeing, any revisions that are required, and - hopefully - to final acceptance.

Please see the Style Guide (http://www.blackwellpublishing.com/pdf/gpol_style_guide.pdf) for full requirements for references, tables and figures.

Please note that submission of a manuscript implies commitment to publish in the Journal. Submission to Global Policy implies that the manuscript has not been published elsewhere, nor is it under consideration by another journal. Authors in doubt about what constitutes prior publication should consult the editors.

Types of articles: Research articles should be no more than 8,000 words in length including all references. The purpose of research articles is to analyse new research, reflect on theoretical developments and engage in scholarly debate.

Policy Insights should be analyses of developments in policy design, policy making and policy implementation. The purpose of these articles is to give our readers in-depth insights into policy practice.

Practitioner commentaries should be no more than 1,500 words in length. The purpose of practitioner commentaries is to provide policy makers' perspectives on practical aspects of global policy change.

Review essays of single books should be no more than 500 words, while reviews covering more than one book may be up to 1,500 words in length. The purpose of review essays is to summarize the text and offer critical analysis of the content.

Title. The title should be concise and supplied on a separate sheet of the manuscript. A short title of no more than 40 characters (including spaces) should also be supplied.

Abstract. An abstract of no more than 150 words in English should precede the article.

Policy Implications. Please provide up to 5 bullet points of no more than 100 words, listing key issues, themes and key policy implications.

Headings. There should be no more than three (clearly marked) levels of subheadings used in the text of the article.

Acknowledgements. These should be supplied, as briefly as possible, on a separate page.

Copyright Transfer Agreement: Authors will be required to sign a Copyright Transfer Agreement (CTA) for all papers accepted for publication. Signature of the CTA is a condition of publication and papers will not be passed to the publisher for production unless a signed form has been received. After submission authors will retain the right to publish their paper in various media/circumstances (please see the form for further details). To assist authors an appropriate form will be supplied by the editorial office. Please return all signed forms to:

Global Policy's interdisciplinary and joined-up academic approach builds on links with a number of leading global universities and institutions. These networks create opportunities for key forms of collaboration and exchange, and help ensure that the Journal is truly global in its editorial approach and strategy.

ECIPE is an independent and non-profit, policy research think tank based in Brussels, Belgium. It was established in 2006 by Razeen Sally and Fredrik Erixon. Fredrik Erixon is the Managing Director of the institute. Our work is dedicated to global trade and digital policy, and other international economic policy issues of importance to Europe. We represent the community that endorses the creation of open markets and free trade and support key decision-makers by providing readily accessible, sound, economic and political analysis.

ECIPE is governed by a Board of Trustees, responsible for general and financial supervision, and has an Advisory Board with highly respected academics and practitioners to advise on research projects including Bruno Maçães, a former Portuguese Europe Minister between 2013-2015, Alejandro Jara, a former Deputy Director-General of WTO, and Frank Lavin, a former Under Secretary of Commerce in the US government.

ECIPE employees are highly qualified scholars who conduct research and publish policy papers, reports and books. We have a network of twenty non-residential associates and senior fellows and offer a platform for other centres and institutes to present new research and analysis in Brussels.
