Japan Center for Economic Research (JCER) is a public interest incorporated association devoted to research on the Japanese economy. Through quality seminars, symposia and research, JCER offers to its membership of leading Japanese companies, national and local governments, think tanks, universities, and economists both up-to-the-minute information on Japan and proposals for Japan’s future. Its extensive network linking industries, governments and universities enables JCER to conduct surveys and research on a broad spectrum of issues including domestic and foreign economic policies, finance, industry and management.

JCER was established in 1963, and its first president was Jiro Enjoji, a former president of Nikkei Inc. Later presidents have been prominent Japanese economists including Saburo Okita, Hisao Kanamori and Yutaka Kosai who conducted empirical research that contributed to the development of the Japanese economy in the postwar period.

In addition to its early focus on economic forecasts and research on public policies in Japan, JCER has also recently been dedicated to international economic research focusing on Asia. In line with this strategy, the “Asia Research Report” and the “China Research Report” have been published since 1998 and 2000, respectively, and articles in these reports have also been published in the Nikkei. JCER is also strengthening its collaborative studies with influential research institutes such as Renmin University of China, Tsinghua University (China), the Shanghai Academy of Social Science (China), the Samsung Economic Research Institute (Korea) and the Center for Strategic and International Studies (USA).

Furthermore, JCER established the “Nikkei Asia Scholarship” program jointly with Nikkei in 2006. JCER invites promising economists from Asian nations to Japan every year under this program.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR AUTHORS

AIMS AND SCOPE
Asian Economic Policy Review is the official English language journal of the Japan Center for Economic Research. The goal of the Asian Economic Policy Review is to become an intellectual voice on the current issues of international economics and economic policy based on comprehensive and in-depth analyses, with a primary focus on Asia. As such, articles in the journal will not be purely academic research or political commentaries. Instead, stress will be placed on identifying key issues at the time – spanning international trade, international finance, the environment, energy, the integration of regional economies and other issues – in order to furnish ideas and proposals to contribute positively to the policy debate in the region. Although the principal focus is economic policy issues, when necessary and relevant, international relations papers will also be included.

EDITORIAL REVIEW AND ACCEPTANCE
The acceptance criteria for all papers are the quality and originality of the research and its significance to our readership. All manuscripts will be presented at a conference organised for each issue of the journal. On the basis of comments made by two assigned discussants and comments from the floor, the Editors will request that revisions be made to the paper. Final acceptance or rejection rests with the Editorial Board, who reserves the right to refuse any material for publication.

Manuscripts should be written so that they are intelligible to the professional reader who is not a specialist in the particular field. They should be written in a clear, concise, direct style. Where contributions are judged as acceptable for publication on the basis of content, the Editor and the Publisher reserve the right to modify typescripts to eliminate ambiguity and repetition and improve communication between author and reader. If extensive alterations are required, the manuscript will be returned to the author for revision.

SUBMISSION OF MANUSCRIPTS
The journal currently does not accept contributed papers. All papers published in the journal are by invitation only. All articles published in the Journal must comply with these instructions. Failure to do so will result in the return of the manuscript and possible delay in publication.

The original manuscript should be submitted as an attachment to an email as either a Word file or PDF file to:

Covering letter
Papers are accepted for publication in the Journal on the understanding that the content has not been published or submitted for publication elsewhere. This must be stated in the covering letter. The covering letter must also contain an acknowledgement that all authors have contributed significantly, and that all authors are in agreement with the content of the manuscript. Authors must declare any financial support or relationships that may pose a conflict of interest.

If tables or figures have been reproduced from another source, a letter from the copyright holder (usually the Publisher) authorizing reproduction of the material must be attached to the covering letter.

Author material archive policy
Authors who require the return of any submitted material that is accepted for publication should inform the Editorial Office after acceptance. If no indication is given that author material should be returned, Wiley will dispose of all hard copy and electronic material two months after publication.

COPYRIGHT AND LICENCING
Accepted papers will be passed to Wiley’s production team for publication. The author identified as the formal corresponding author for the paper will receive an email prompting them to login into Wiley’s Author Licensing Service (WALS) they will be asked to complete an electronic license agreement on behalf of all authors on the paper. FAQs about the terms and conditions of the standard copyright transfer agreements (CTA) in place for the journal can be viewed here:

OnlineOpen – ‘Gold’ open access
OnlineOpen is available to authors of articles who wish to make their article freely available to all on Wiley Online Library under a Creative Commons licence. In addition, authors of OnlineOpen articles are permitted to post the final, published PDF of their article on a website, institutional repository or other free public server, immediately on publication. With OnlineOpen the author, the author’s funding agency, or the author’s institution pays a fee to ensure that the article is made open access, known as ‘gold road’ open access.

OnlineOpen licenses
Authors choosing OnlineOpen retain copyright in their article and have a choice of publishing under the following Creative Commons License terms:
- Creative Commons Attribution License (CC BY)
- Creative Commons Attribution Non-Commercial License (CC BY NC)
- Creative Commons Attribution Non-Commercial-NoDerivs License (CC BY NC ND)

For more information about the OnlineOpen license terms and conditions go to

Deposit of Accepted Version - ‘Green’ open access
Some authors will be required by their funders/employers to deposit the accepted version of the article in a repository. The following terms are offered as part of the journals’ standard Copyright Transfer Agreement.

Funder arrangements: Certain funders require deposit of the Accepted Version in a repository after an embargo period. Details of funding arrangements are set out at the following website: http://www.wiley.com/go/funderstatement. Please contact the Journal production editor if you have additional funding requirements.

Institutions: Wiley has arrangements with certain academic institutions to permit the deposit of the Accepted Version in the institutional repository after an embargo period. Details of such arrangements are set out at the following website: http://www.wiley.com/go/funderstatement
STYLE OF THE MANUSCRIPT

Spelling The Journal uses US spelling and authors should therefore follow the latest edition of the Merriam–Webster’s Collegiate Dictionary.

Abbreviations In general, terms should not be abbreviated unless they are used repeatedly and the abbreviation is helpful to the reader. Initially, use the word in full followed by the abbreviation in parentheses. Thereafter, use the abbreviation only.

Margins and Page Numbering The top, bottom and side margins should be at least 30 mm. All pages should be numbered consecutively in the top right-hand corner, beginning with the title page.

Article title Titles cannot begin with ‘A’, ‘An’ or ‘The’. If a correction is necessary, it will be flagged up as an author query.

Order of the names Japanese names should be written with the given name first, followed by the family name.

PARTS OF THE MANUSCRIPT

The length of an article (including references, endnotes, tables and appendices) should not exceed 7500 words. Comments should not exceed 900 words, or two typeset pages.

Manuscripts should be presented in the following order: (i) title page, (ii) abstract and key words, (iii) text, (iv) acknowledgments, (v) references, (vi) endnotes, (vii) appendices, (viii) figure legends, (ix) tables (each table complete with title and footnotes) and (x) figures.

Title page

The title page should contain (i) the title of the paper, (ii) the full names of the authors and (iii) the addresses of the institutions at which the work was carried out together with (iv) the full postal and email address, plus facsimile and telephone numbers, of the author to whom correspondence about the manuscript should be sent. The present address of any author, if different from that where the work was carried out, should be supplied in a footnote.

The title page should be short, informative and contain the major key words. Do not use abbreviations in the title.

A short running title (less than 40 characters) should also be provided.

Abstract, key words and JEL codes

All articles, except comments, must have a brief abstract that states in 100 words or fewer the major points made and the principal conclusions reached. The abstract should not contain abbreviations or references.

Five key words (for the purposes of indexing) should be supplied below the abstract in alphabetical order. JEL codes for the article should also be provided, as appropriate.

Research Highlights

Authors are required to submit up to four ‘Research Highlights’ with their manuscripts. These are bulleted points outlining the key contributions to research the paper makes. The Research Highlights should be placed before the abstract. Each research highlight should not be longer than 25 words.

Text

The text should be organised into an introductory section, conveying the background and purpose of the report, and then into sections identified with subheadings.

Acknowledgments

The source of financial grants and other funding must be acknowledged, including a frank declaration of the authors’ industrial links and affiliations. The contribution of colleagues or institutions should also be acknowledged. Personal thanks and thanks to anonymous reviewers are not appropriate.

References

The Harvard (author, date) system of referencing is used (examples are given below). In the text give the author’s name followed by the year in parentheses: Smith (2000). If there are two authors use ‘and’: Smith and Jones (2001); but if cited within parentheses use ‘&’: (Smith & Jones 2001). When reference is made to a work by three or more authors, the first name followed by et al. should be used: MacDonald et al. (2002).

For foreign language material (e.g. material written in Japanese and Chinese), authors should include a transliteration of the title of the article or book in the native language together with an English translation, and indicate at the end of the reference the language of the original publication in brackets.

In the reference list, references should be listed in alphabetical order. In the reference list, cite the names of all authors when there are six or fewer; when seven or more, list the first three followed by et al. Do not use ibid. or op cit. Reference to unpublished data and personal communications should not appear in the list but should be cited in the text only (e.g. Smith A, 2000, unpublished data). All citations mentioned in the text, tables or figures must be listed in the reference list.

Authors are responsible for the accuracy of the references.

Discussion papers

Footnotes

Footnotes should be placed at the foot of each page and be numbered with consecutive, superscript Arabic numerals. Keep footnotes brief: they should contain only short comments tangential to the main argument of the paper and should not include references.

Appendices

These should be placed at the end of the paper, numbered in Roman numerals and referred to in the text. If written by a person other than the author of the main text, the writer’s name should be included below the title.
Tables
Keep tables to a minimum.

Tables should be self-contained and complement, but not duplicate, information contained in the text. Number tables consecutively in the text in Arabic numerals. Type tables on a separate page with the legend above. Legends should be concise but comprehensive – the table, legend and footnotes must be understandable without reference to the text. Vertical lines should not be used to separate columns. Column headings should be brief, with units of measurement in parentheses; all abbreviations must be defined in footnotes. Footnote symbols: †, ‡, §, ¶, should be used in (that order) and *, ,  should be reserved for P-values. Statistical measures such as SD or SEM should be identified in the headings.

Figures
Keep figures to a minimum.

All illustrations (line drawings and photographs) are classified as figures. Figures should be cited in consecutive order in the text. Figures should be sized to fit within the full text width (118 mm).

If supplied electronically, figures must be supplied as high resolution (at least 300 dpi) files, saved as .eps or .tif. Do not embed figures in the Word document – they must be supplied in separate files. Line figures should be supplied as sharp, black and white graphs or diagrams, drawn professionally or with a computer graphics package. Lettering must be included and should be sized to be no larger than the journal text.

Original slides and unmounted high-resolution photographs can be submitted by post if the author does not have access to scanning facilities. Hard-copy figures should be labelled on the back indicating name of author(s), figure number and orientation. Individual photographs forming a composite figure should be of equal contrast to facilitate printing and should be accurately squared.

Type figure legends on a separate page. Legends should be concise but comprehensive – the figure and its legend must be understandable without reference to the text. Include definitions of any symbols used and define/explain all abbreviations and units of measurement.

Equations
Equations should be numbered sequentially with Arabic numerals; these should be ranged right in parentheses. All variables should appear in italics. Use the simplest possible form for all mathematical symbols.

Online Supplementary Material
Online supplementary material is information that is not essential to the article, but provides greater depth and background. It is hosted online and appears without editing or typesetting. It may include tables, figures, videos, datasets, etc. Click here for Wiley’s FAQs on supporting information.

Note: if data, scripts, or other artefacts used to generate the analyses presented in the paper are available via a publicly available data repository, authors should include a reference to the location of the material within their paper.

ELECTRONIC SUBMISSION OF MANUSCRIPTS
The following instructions should be adhered to in preparing the manuscript:

Do not use Enter at the end of lines within a paragraph.

Turn the hyphenation option off; include only those hyphens that are essential to the meaning.
