CLINICAL ORAL IMPLANTS RESEARCH
Official Publication of the European Association for Osseointegration

AIM AND SCOPE
This journal conveys scientific progress in the field of implant dentistry and its related areas to clinicians, teachers and researchers concerned with the application of this information for the benefit of patients in need of oral implants. The journal addresses itself to clinicians, general practitioners, periodontists, oral and maxillofacial surgeons, as well as to teachers, academicians and scholars involved in the education of professionals and in the scientific promotion of the field of implant dentistry.

THE JOURNAL PUBLISHES:
- original research data of high scientific merit in the field of material sciences, physiology of wound healing, biology of tissue integration of implants, diagnosis and treatment planning, prevention of pathological processes jeopardizing the longevity of implants, clinical trials on implant systems, stomatognathic physiology related to oral implants, new developments in therapeutic concepts and prosthetic rehabilitation.
- review articles by experts on new developments in basic sciences related to implant dentistry and clinically applied concepts.
- case reports if they provide or document new fundamental knowledge.
- novel developments if they provide a technical novelty for any implant system.
- short communications of important research findings in a concise format and for rapid publication.
- treatment rational by experts with evidence-based treatment approach.

The usual selective criteria for acceptance of manuscripts apply. The manuscripts are reviewed by at least two referees serving on the Editorial Board. Publication time is kept to a minimum to publish new information in the shortest possible time.
