

AUTHORSHIP

Pain Practice does not recognize honorary authorship in any form. To be listed as an author each individual must independently satisfy three criteria. First, each author must have made significant scientific contribution to the work. Significant contribution is defined as substantial contribution to the study conception, study design, data acquisition, data analysis, or interpretation of the data. Secondly, each author must be familiar with the content of the manuscript. Familiarity is defined as drafting or revising the manuscript critically for important intellectual content. Finally, each author must be willing to take responsibility for the completeness and accuracy of the content. This responsibility includes final approval of the manuscript. If authorship is attributed to a group, all members of the group must meet the full criteria and requirements for authorship as described above.
