

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Third International Congress on Male Contraception, organized by the International Consortium for Male Contraception, will be held on May 23, 2022, at the French National Academy of Medicine in Paris, France. Top class International speakers will present the latest information on the research in this field. The target audience for this activity includes reproductive endocrinologists, andrologists and family planning specialists and fellows.

We expect the meeting to foster advocacy for research on male contraception and create understanding of this major unmet need. Information on the Program and Registration are available on the website www.ic-mc.info
